Police shortage studied

By GREIG DEEM
Universe Staff Writer

One of a police manpower shortage of a Provo police committee is misleading, the Provo commission said in a meeting yesterday.

Police Wage and Manpower committee submitted two proposals to the commission, one to increase 14 officers and a second to increase 14 officers throughout the commission said. The committee said that the city could not afford to increase the number of officers by more than 9,000 of the cost to implement both. If the first proposal is used it would cost the city $253,371 and if the second is used it would cost the city $248,864.

Commissioner Meecham said her concern about the manpower shortage and admitted the existence of a problem, but pointed out that the proposal was based on a study of 14 officers used in determining the number of officers needed. The study was based on a study of 14 officers used in determining the number of officers needed. The study was based on a study of 14 officers used in determining the number of officers needed.

"While statistics can be a great help in showing where additional manpower is warranted, the city must be very careful in reviewing statistics to make sure they are relevant," she said.

"The number of police per thousand isn't really relevant," said Provo Mayor James E. Ferguson. "We need to look at something that is more relevant, such as calls per officer."

Commissioner Meecham added, "If we use calls per officer we need to get accurate figures. Figures which do not include calls which could be resolved over the phone by the dispatcher, or handled by the cadets."

Provo Police Sgt. Jerry Marking presented figures on starting salaries of police officers from around the state, and said that Provo ranked eleventh.

Mrs. Meecham agreed these figures were valid and useful in budget considerations. The mayor agreed with the commissioner's view that any figures presented are valuable and would be seriously considered.

"It's too premature for the committee to give anything definite," she said concerning the budget. "We'd have to have a crystal ball to make a decision at this point, but we want everyone concerned to know that we are sensitive about the issue."

Commissioner Meecham said that while much press attention has been given to police proposals, all department proposals, which have been submitted for the coming year, are being given equal consideration by the commission.

"Each office in Provo City is unique and will require the sensitive review by the budget office and the commission in order to meet their respective budgetary needs," Mrs. Meecham said.

She said a budget proposal will be available shortly after May 1, which is the deadline for a complete tentative budget to be submitted by the city auditor.

"After the budget is submitted by the auditor," she said. "The commission will then go through the proposed budget with each of the department heads before making a final decision."

She added that during the month-long period, the commission will meet regularly with the city auditor to establish priorities and budget policies.

"The completed budget for the year must be submitted and adopted by May 29," the commissioner said. "On June 17 a public hearing will be held which will allow Provo citizens to voice their opinion, and then the budget adoption will be finalized."

Concerning police budget proposals, Commissioner A. John Clarke said, "I think the committee needs to get together with the chief and decide what their priorities are. Is it strictly manpower, or does it include uniforms and vehicles, or is it a combination of both?"

"If we do find that there is a need, where do we get the extra money?" asked the mayor. "This will be decided in May. At that time we can decide what areas to cut or, if we need to, assess an additional mill levy."

Carter to enforce Olympic boycott

Washington (AP) — President Carter said Thursday he is prepared to take legal action if necessary to prevent American athletes from participating in the Moscow Olympics this summer.

In a speech prepared for the American Society of Newspaper Editors convention in Washington, the president made it clear he does not consider the United States bound by a decision of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Carter has demanded that Americans boycott the Moscow Games to protest the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

The president also defended his policy in the Iranian crisis and said Iran's leaders lack "the cohesion and resolve" to end the long stalemate over the holding of American hostages.

Carter previously had told American athletes invited to the White House that the United States would not send a team to the Summer Games this year, but there have been suggestions that some athletes might seek a change in Olympic rules to permit them to participate as individuals or to compete without taking part in Olympic ceremonies.

"If legal actions are necessary to enforce the decision not to send a team to Moscow, I will take them," the president said.

But Carter made clear in his speech to the editors that no such alternative is acceptable.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said any administration actions depends to some degree on what the International Olympic Committee, its U.S. component and the athletes themselves do. But he said the president contemplates an exercise of his executive authority, rather than going into court to seek to restrain American Olympians.

The government could revoke the athletes' passports or stamp them invalid for travel to the Soviet Union, but Powell indicated the administration is reluctant to use that power.

However, Powell said, "We will take whatever legal action is necessary to enforce the president's decision, but we're clearly not going to turn the United States into a police state."

Asked what authority the president might exercise, Powell said, "There is no clear authority to make sure nobody goes representing the United States," but he added that Carter has no intention of making the United States like the Soviet Union "where they shoot people trying to leave the country."

Territorial conflict

Iran, Iraq exchange fire at border

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Iranian and Iraqi forces, supported by helicopters, exchanged artillery and mortar fire across their troubled border Thursday, Tehran radio reported. It said the Iranian command dispatched ships into the northern Persian Gulf to guard against "any aggression" from Iraq.

Iran's news agency reported a bomb blast killed one person and wounded 20 in the southwestern port city of Abadan, near Iraq. It blamed the Iraqis.

The Baghdad government, calling on other Arab nations to rally behind it against Iran, denounced revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in bitter terms.

"This crazy, racist Khomeini is nothing but a turbaned shah," the official Iraqi News Agency said in an editorial.

The government-run Tehran radio said 14,000 Iranians expelled from Iraq by the Baghdad government had poured across the border into the western Iranian province of Ilam, and 11,000 more had arrived in Kermanshah province, just north of Ilam.

Tensions between the Mideast neighbors, which have long been antagonistic, erupted into violence earlier this week, when Iran reported cross-border assaults by small bands of Iraqi troops.

Khomeini and other leaders of Iran's Islamic-oriented revolutionary government called on Iraqis to overthrow their secular, socialist regime, headed by President Saddam Hussein. The two countries have conflicting territorial claims, and the friction has been heightened by turmoil among the Kurdish ethnic minority that overlaps the border and among the Arabs of southwest Iran.

Most of the fighting has centered on an area near the Iranian border town of Qasr-e-Shirin, some 300 miles west of Tehran and 90 miles northeast of Baghdad.

Tehran radio said the exchanges continued Thursday for the third day.

An Iranian commander in the area said Iraqi artillery fire — reaching as far as seven miles into Iran — had damaged a police post and destroyed three peasant houses, Tehran radio said.

The broadcasts said three Iraqi helicopters flew over the battle area. The Iraqis also have been reported using helicopters in the skirmishing.

Israelis enter Lebanon to halt guerrilla attacks

Spokesmen for the U.N. forces in Lebanon confirmed the report.

At the United Nations in New York, a spokesman for U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said "there is some indication of a beginning of a withdrawal of the Israeli forces" but there was no confirmation of his report.

U.N. spokesman Rudolf Stadjuhar gave no details but said his statement was based on a report received from U.N. headquarters in Naqurah, Lebanon. He said the situation could shift one way or another at any time.

Lebanese Ambassador Ghassan Tuani made an oral request for a Security Council session during this month's council period, Mexican Ambassador Fordirio Munoz Ledo.

Meanwhile, sources at U.N. headquarters said the United States was urging Israel to withdraw.

Clarkham, Jackson keep SDA positions

By ANDY HOPSON
Universe Staff Writer

Traditionally, students have been elected each year for leadership positions in the Student Development Union, but Mike Thomas, SDA has not accepted any applications this year and says he does not intend to.

"I recommended that we keep the officers another year," he said. "I think it's a good thing when I see it."

The officers presently are Reed M. president; Bryan Jackson, vice president; and Karen Koning, secretary. Thomas added that Lori will be appointed vice president with Jackson, since there have been only two vice presidents.

As said the SDA president $570 per semester and each of the presidents receives $520. The salary is paid an hourly wage.

The normal procedure for selecting a president is to interview applicants and accept the one most qualified, Thomas said.

Universe stops for 2 weeks

This marks the end of another year of publication for The Universe. The paper will have its last publication on April 29, the beginning of spring term.

A "sustaining vote" must then be made by a committee of representatives from administration, the ASBYU president and the president-elect, according to Thomas.

Thomas said the reappointment of the present officers also requires the approval of the committee.

"After he has been approved, the SDA president chooses two vice presidents and a secretary," he said. "These officers are subject to my approval and the approval of the committee."

ASBYU President Dave Listter was critical of Thomas for not accepting applications this year. "The present officers may have done a good job, but what if Kim Cox and I thought we had done a good job and said, 'Sorry Duke and Frank, we're going to stay another year'."

"I think the job opportunity should be made available to all students," he added. "Thomas should be required to post an announcement in the paper soliciting applications for all the positions."

Listter also disapproves of allowing the SDA president to choose the other officers. "That's too much power," he said. "There's a lot of money involved."

Listter added, "The SDA advisor should be active in the selection process but the committee should have more input. That way you would be getting the opinion of people with different perspectives."

Y truck loses load

A BYU dump truck transporting top soil overturned Thursday afternoon in the football stadium parking lot. According to Steve Baker, BYU patrol officer, the driver was unable to stop the truck, so he pulled into the parking lot. As the truck turned it fell over and the driver, Mike J. Valdez, slipped through the window. He was not injured.

Compiled from The Associated Press

Europeans issue Iran declaration

Western European nations told their Tehran ambassadors Thursday to "demand" that Iran release the 50 U.S. Embassy hostages. The toughly worded declaration by the nine Common Market nations stopped short of joining in U.S. sanctions against Iran, but it hinted that some action might be taken later.

In Tehran, meanwhile, the Moslem militants holding the embassy made a new death threat against their American prisoners, captive for 159 days.

The hostages will be "destroyed" if Iraq invades Iran, a militant identified only as "Habib" told NBC-TV in an interview.

Iran and Iraq are engaged in a fresh round of border hostility and each has accused the other of acting on behalf of U.S. "imperialism."

The Iranian military said Thursday the border region had been quiet since artillery and small-arm skirmishing in Iran's Kermanshah province Wednesday, but it ordered Iranian naval units to leave the port of Abadan and cruise the northern Persian Gulf to "counter any aggression" by the Iraqis.

Carter rejects Reagan criticism

President Carter rejected Ronald Reagan's criticism of his conduct of foreign policy Thursday as helping the Kremlin and Iranian terrorists. At the same forum, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy accused Carter of actually inviting Reagan's election in November.

Carter and Kennedy, his challenger for the Democratic presidential nomination, spoke separately from the same platform before the American Society of Newspaper Editors, and both took the occasion to attack their political opponents.

After a speech dominated by foreign policy, Carter told questioners that the Soviet leadership and Iranians holding Americans hostage in Tehran both would agree with Reagan that the United States was responsible for the Afghanistan and Iranian crises. Those arguments, Carter said, "can only help them."

Following Carter to the rostrum about four hours later, Kennedy took aim at both Democratic and Republican front-runners. "The Republicans cannot lead by summoning the nation backwords and the Democratic Party cannot succeed by trying to out-Republican the Republicans," he said.

Cuban refugees offered asylum

LIMA, Peru — Five South American countries agreed Thursday to take in some of the thousands of Cubans who flocked into the Peruvian embassy in Havana seeking help to leave the country.

"I can't do it in five minutes, but we are trying to do it as quickly and efficiently as possible," Ecuador's Foreign Minister Alfredo Pareja said after an overnight emergency meeting of the Andean Council.

Peruvian Foreign Minister Arturo Garcia y Garcia said Peru was ready to receive 1,000 persons. He said he could not comment on how many the other council members or other countries would take.

In a joint statement the council said Cuba was responsible for what had happened, but that it was the obligation of the rest of the world to help the refugees.

Garcia confirmed that offers had been received from nations outside the Andean region, although he would not identify them.

In Washington, President Carter has expressed sympathy for the Cubans' desire to flee Fidel Castro's communist regime, but made no commitment to accept refugees. State Department officials said they would consider applications from refugees who managed to reach Lima.

The Peruvian Foreign Ministry said the embassy in Havana had registered the names and backgrounds of 6,000 refugees as of Wednesday.

Pareja said "international agencies" had offered to provide airplanes and personnel for the evacuation.

Lillian Carter witness in trial

ATLANTA — Former federal budget director Bert Lance opened the trial in his bank fraud Thursday declaring that he had not lied to an Atlanta bank. Present Carter's mother testified that Lance had more "honesty, integrity and truthfulness" than "anyone I know."

"Absolutely not," Lance said in a booming voice, when defense attorney Nicholas Chilivis asked whether he had falsified a July 1974 financial statement submitted to the Trust Co. Bank of Atlanta.

Chilivis then asked the former banker whether any items were false in a June 1975 statement.

"Absolutely none," Lance replied.

Lance's testimony, which promised to be lengthy, was interrupted briefly for character testimony by Lillian Carter, the president's 81-year-old mother.

She said she had known Lance since 1970 and was aware of Lance's "reputation for honesty, integrity and truthfulness."

"I think he has more of them than anyone I know," Mrs. Carter said. "I think Mr. Lance is quite a man."

Prosecutors rested their case Wednesday, after the testimony of their 159th witness, U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moyer Jr. then acquitted Lance on 10 other bank fraud charges in the indictment.

Eruptions, two earthquakes persist at St. Helens volcano

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — With clouds of ash, two heavy earthquakes and a "weak" pair of harmonic tremors, Mount St. Helens erupted Thursday into its third week of eruptions.

Ash continued to spout from the 9,677-foot volcano throughout the day, but eruptions were only visible to scientists and others flying above clouds which obscured the view from the ground, a U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman said.

The latest harmonic tremor started at 1:03 a.m. Thursday and lasted 16 minutes. It was described as very weak, said Dave Endicott, a spokesman for University of Washington seismologists in Seattle. Another harmonic tremor occurred at 5:16 a.m. and lasted 13 minutes.

Scientists have said harmonic tremors indicated the movement of magma — molten rock — within the volcano. But Craig Weaver, a U.S. Geological Survey seismologist, said the tremors also could indicate the movement of steam or other gases.

"This was such a low amplitude it only showed up on seismograph stations near the mountain," said Weaver. "It didn't show up at regional stations like earlier events."

An earthquake

measuring 4.4 on the Richter scale gave the mountain a firmer jolt at 6:19 a.m. Thursday, Weaver said, followed by a 4.2 quake at 1:08 p.m. Such quakes have become almost routine at the volcano.

Don Mullineaux, the lead USGS scientist, said the danger of mud-slides remained along Highway 504 on the north side of the mountain near the Toutle river, one reason that roadblocks were maintained.

Mullineaux said there is a "very good possibility" of a slide that would close the road and cause some flooding.

The southwest Washington volcano began erupting ash March 27. No lava has been seen. Weaver said the mountain appeared to be in a "steady state" with its quakes and tremors.

Meanwhile, the Forest Service prepared to move its information center from a motel back into government offices in Vancouver.

"We're getting settled down for a long watch," said Forest Service spokesman Norm son. "The last time this (more than 10 ago) it lasted 25

There were five ash eruption day, spouting altitude of about feet, said P. McGinty, Forest Service spokeswoman.

Scientists also crater was slightly than the 2,000 diameter and deep, reported before.

South African blacks get 'white' area jobs

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — South white minority government has decided black building workers to do skilled jobs in areas, it was announced Thursday.

Chipman to receive sentence today

David Chipman of Salt Lake City faces sentencing for attempting to commit forcible sexual abuse, a misdemeanor, today at 9 a.m. in the Fourth District Court in Provo. Chipman, 24, who is not a student at BYU, was arrested by the school's Security Police last February. He was charged with making homosexual advances toward David Neumann, who then worked as an undercover agent for BYU Security Police.

In the trial held April 1, Judge David San said that there was insufficient evidence that Chipman committed the crime, but there was enough evidence that he attempted to carry it out.

"We're happy the judge found him not guilty of this charge," said Ronald R. Stanger, Chipman's defending attorney. "It is our position that even on a lesser misdemeanor sentence there are appealable issues."

Regardless of the severity of the sentencing, Stanger says he plans to appeal the charge. There was not enough evidence to show Chipman attempted to sexually abuse the undercover officer, he said.

Entrapment procedures were used by BYU Security, claimed Stanger, as well as the apparent consent of the officer involved.

"We believe the evidence substantiates our position to appeal," Stanger said.

In the trial, Stanger criticized BYU Security officers, saying the law giving them off-campus police powers is an unconstitutional breach of the separation between church and state.

"University police don't have a mission to enforce the university Code of Honor except for violations of the law," BYU President Dallin Oaks said in an earlier statement.

"Sexual solicitation laws are enforced by law agencies all over the country and we'll continue to enforce them," Oaks said.

Reference booklet made; lists university reading list

"This book tells you everything you would want to know about... It's a familiar line and this time it's true. Blue Key, an academic service organization has compiled a reference booklet called the "University Reading List" designed to help students become informed about the various academic disciplines available at BYU.

A committee of six Blue Key members contacted every department chairman at the university and asked them to suggest two of the finest works in print on their particular discipline. From this list, the booklet was compiled.

It is available in the BYU bookstore and costs 50 cents. There are 32 pages and each reference entry is annotated.

"The works we have gathered for the list are written in general terms so that a student can get a basic idea of what the major consists of," said David Johnson, chairman of the committee.

The list will be updated periodically and both the bookstore and the library are working to acquire the books mentioned in the list so that they may be available for the students. For any questions or suggestions contact Paul Bergaust, president of Blue Key, 374-1984.

Y freshman publishes own magazine

By MARA CALLISTER
Universe Staff Writer

He has never taken a college English class and took vocational training in high school, but one BYU freshman is writer, editor and publisher of his own magazine.

Pieter Sween, a sociology major from Santa Barbara, Calif., and his partner, Theodore J. Gerun, who is finishing his master's in social work, will print the first issues of "Troubles To Triumph" in June.

Sween and Gerun want the magazine to "inject enthusiasm and motivation" into juvenile delinquents and troubled teenagers.

Although Sween only imagined and started the project during winter semester, he said the idea stemmed from his childhood. The Mormon convert came from an unhappy home where his parents visited marriage counselors for 15 years before getting a divorce. During elementary school he visited a child psychologist and needed special tutoring in school.

"Mr. Gerun and I are both troubled to triumph stories," Sween said quietly. "I remember hating my dad and being called a slow learner. I was tall and lanky, not very good at sports. I didn't feel I was a normal kid and it made me very insecure," he added.

"What I never figured out was that every kid feels that way to some degree."

During junior high, Sween decided he did not want to visit a real police man and the man so impressed me I decided to follow that line of work." Since his first job at age 13, the freshman, who served a mission in England for the LDS Church, has worked as a security guard, sheriff cadet, volunteer policeman, corrections officer in an adult jail and is currently a full-time counselor for the Utah Boys' Ranch in Orem.

While in charge of 100 men in the California jail, Sween decided he did not want to work any longer with criminals who would not change. "It was really depressing to see the same criminals keep coming back in, and not one of them improving," Sween said.

The young businessman left his prison job for work and school in Provo. While on a vacation before classes began, Sween thought of writing a magazine to "motivate kids who could still change." And he did not hesitate to move.

When Sween is not counseling "stuffers" at a local high school, gardening with the boys at the Utah Ranch, or flying across the United States to pick up runaways, he works on the magazine's first issue.

"We really are in this because we feel it could be a great tool for change," he added.

The non-profit magazine will go to detention homes and counselors, doctor and dentist associations and possibly LDS seminaries. Sween said he gets his material for features by word-of-mouth wherever he goes and appreciates the response he gets from students and professionals who want to help the magazine.

Sesquicentennial lecture series

Church now worldwide

By JAY JOHNSON
Universe Staff Writer

Not only is the LDS church rapidly gaining converts throughout the world, but the perspectives of church members are expanding to see the church as a world-wide organization, said Dr. Spencer J. Palmer speaking in the Sesquicentennial Lecture Series Thursday.

Palmer, director of world religions at BYU, spoke on the subject, "The Expanding Church," another in a series sponsored by the Harold B. Lee Library. He said the church in Asia is growing rapidly, and fast becoming independent of help from the center of Mormonism, Salt Lake City.

The outlook of U.S. members toward the church in Asia has changed considerably, Palmer said. "It's not nearly as surprising to hear about the growth of the church in Asian countries as it once was," he said.

During his remarks, Palmer invited Ko Heung Yong, president of the Seoul Korea East Stake, to comment on the projected growth of the LDS church in Korea. Ko said that the master plan for Korea included a goal of organizing 65 new stakes in the next five years.

He added that although this goal would be difficult to attain, it wouldn't be impossible, since the number of stakes in his country has already more than doubled since last year. There are presently five stakes in Palmer added that the church is growing at a steady pace throughout the world. More than 200,000 people church in 1973.

"The barriers are coming down everywhere in There is no barrier which should separate any earth from Christ's gospel and blessings," Palmer He added that one of the main concerns in the church members should be "How can we bring the children of Abraham or the people of Israel said a great step toward bringing the gospel to other Middle East nations was the establishment BYU center in Jerusalem. He added that work progress for the opening of Egypt to BYU student church. This could take place in the near future said.

Commenting on the fact that the church is not as being for the United States alone, Palmer said are beginning to readjust our conception of who is for."

Palmer concluded his remarks by saying that of the gospel rolling forth is exciting to me. I see up to encompass all nations, that they may gospel of Jesus Christ."

Kevin L. Mansfield has been selected as the director of public relations for ASBYU.

Mansfield, a junior majoring in public relations from Ogden, Utah, is currently the director of the New Student Assistance Program (formerly called the Buddy Program), and was named "Outstanding Junior in Public Relations" by the communications department.

The director of public relations replaces the ASBYU executive secretary. A bylaw was passed by the executive council redefining the responsibilities of the office. The name was formally changed by the amendment passed in the ASBYU elections.

"I'm excited about working with ASBYU this year," Mansfield said. "Our main emphasis will be on consolidating and strengthening the publicity of ASBYU activities."

He added that one of his major concerns will be to "improve the chain of communications" between the students and ASBYU.

ers to discuss bridge design

New York City consulting engineer and a BYU engineer, both experts in bridge design and construction, will conduct a miniconference on bridge design at BYU Friday from 9 a.m. to noon.

Wally and D. Allan Firmage will each make presentations at the miniconference to be held in V.C. There is no pre-registration or fee to attend the sessions, which are open to students and faculty.

The sessions will discuss new design and specifications for steel box girders. The sessions will also discuss new design and specifications for concrete box girders.

Due to the rapid increase in cost of materials, necessary to prepare more precise bridge designs to produce safe and economical bridges, said. The conference will help engineers and design engineers to create those designs.

He has designed bridges in several states and has lectured on bridge design in many Asian and American countries and is the author of books on engineering.

Fifteen initiated into honor society

Fifteen upper-division and graduate students at BYU have been elected to membership in Kappa Tau Alpha, national scholarship society in mass communications.

Each of the inductees will receive the next four issues of Journalism Quarterly, the research journal published for professionals in the field by the Association for Education in Journalism.

Y to represent German Institution

The Goethe-Institute, a prestigious German educational and cultural institution, has named Brigham Young University's department of Germanic languages as its Intermountain area representative to administer the institute's proficiency examination.

BYU will offer the examination regularly in December and April. The exam will also be offered during the summer in connection with the university's German spring-summer programs for teachers.

Once an individual has passed the exam and received the institute's certificate, he or she is entitled to attend German universities without being required to take special language courses. The certificate is also valuable for work in international business, law or government.

Fellowship awarded to Y senior

Lynda J. Kasper of Madison, Wis., a senior in medical dietetics, has been awarded a $3,000 fellowship for graduate study by the Phi Kappa Phi honor society.

Dr. Roger R. Yoerger, director of fellowships for the nationwide scholastic organization, headquartered at Louisiana State University, said that Miss Kasper is one of 40 selected for the honor from a group of 117 of the nation's outstanding 1980 college graduates. This is the second consecutive year that a BYU senior has received the award.

Miss Kasper plans to study law at BYU or nutrition at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Choirs seek vocalists, set auditions

The department of music will hold open auditions for the A Cappella and Oratorio Choirs next week for fall semester 1980.

Dr. Ralph Woodward, director of the A Cappella Choir will hold auditions Monday through Wednesday. Interested students may sign up for an audition time on the bulletin board at E-400, HFAC.

Auditions for the Oratorio Choir will be held by Dr. Ron Stahl on Monday through Thursday. Sign-ups are posted outside E-564 HFAC.

Both choral groups are looking for talented vocalists who are interested in participating in performance organizations.

Student awarded $500 for research

Steven D. Phillips has been chosen as the 1979-80 recipient of the Brigham Young University Telford Eames Woolley Memorial Research Award. Phillips will receive $500 to apply toward his education expenses. He is currently working on his doctoral degree in organic chemistry under the direction of Dr. Raymond N. Castle. He is specializing in the synthesis of compounds related to known antitumor agents.

Fair to test foreign language skills

More than 2,000 students of Spanish, German and French at junior and senior high schools throughout Utah will test their language skills at BYU Friday during the university's annual Foreign Language Fair.

The students will demonstrate oral proficiency in the different languages by presenting skits, giving prepared and impromptu speeches and writing poetry and humorous stories, according to Paul P. Luckau, an associate professor of German, who is helping to organize the fair.

The students will be rated for their performances, with the best receiving certificates of achievement with ratings from "good" to "superior."

The fair, scheduled for the end of the school year when the students will be most proficient in the languages, is one of three activities held on the BYU campus during the year to encourage foreign language study in junior and senior high schools.

A special foreign language field day is held each fall to help get students excited about studying another language, Luckau said. Open houses held throughout the year are scheduled between BYU and different schools to promote foreign language study.

For the first time this year, as part of the fair, students will be able to take a simulated trip to the country where the language they are learning is spoken, Luckau said.

In an experimental activity, Spanish students will enter their new country with a passport, and then obtain a visa which will include a list of nine requirements, a Spanish language obstacle course of sorts, which will require activities such as changing money, going to the marketplace and ordering food catered by natives of Latin American countries.

The highlight of the fair will be a "language bowl" competition among the various schools participating in the language fair, Luckau said.

Y alumnus receives award

In honor of his achievements as a handicapped citizen, BYU Alumnus Gerald O'Neil was presented the "Golden Key Award" at a ceremony in Salt Lake City Thursday.

The Golden Key Award, presented by the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, recognizes "outstanding individuals who have surmounted their handicaps to become productive citizens." It also recognizes employers and leaders who have opened the door of opportunity for such individuals.

Gerald O'Neil has had a severe visual handicap since birth, and is classified as "legally blind." In spite of this he served a full time mission for the LDS Church, completely financed his own education and is presently a Learning Resource Teacher in the Saun Juan District of Utah.

O'Neil graduated from BYU in 1979 with a B.S. in Elementary and Special Education.

Wyoming coming for Classic

Brigham Young University's soccer team will have little time to rest on its laurels following the victory in last weekend's Spring Invitational. It hosts the Intermountain Intercollegiate Soccer Classic Friday and Saturday. Teams from New Mexico, Wyoming, Idaho State, Montana, Weber State,

Utah State, and Utah will be hosted in the field of eight contenders. The tournament should provide an exciting brand of soccer, as many different styles of play will be showcased. Ninety percent of the Wyoming team is Scandinavian, and their style is fast-paced and team-oriented.

Dusara said the Cowboys will be the toughest competition the Cougars will be up against in the tournament.

Utah State utilizes an individual attack by several South Americans on the team.

BYU and Utah boast of some excellent American players; such as Clark Fleming and Robert Vogelsberg of BYU.

Vogelsberg was the outstanding player of the Spring Invitational, scoring four goals and creating several key offensive plays.

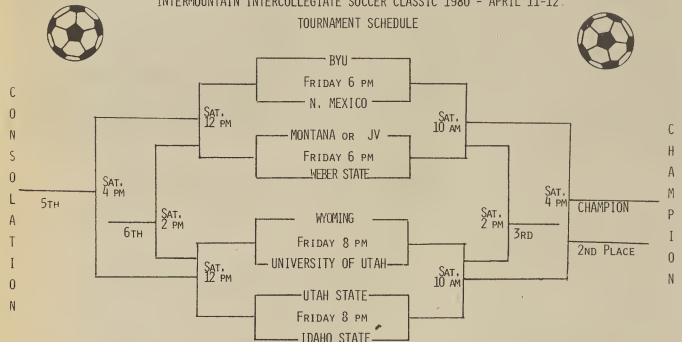

"A great deal of credit must also be given to our two goalies — Clark Fleming and Garth Baker. They played very well, giving up only three goals in the three games between them," said Cougar Coach Savji "Jim" Dusara.

Looking back to the Spring Invitational, Dusara said, "The championship game was not up to our standards. Their (Colorado State's) defense was the cause of several turnovers. We lost our poise in the most physical game of the Invitational."

Just the same, the Cougars won and pushed their record to 10-1. The only mark against the Cougars came when the Berlin Soccer Club of Salt Lake City registered a 2-1 win with the three Cougar midfielders out of action.

INTERMOUNTAIN INTERCOLLEGIATE SOCCER CLASSIC 1980 - APRIL 11-12

TOURNAMENT SCHEDULE

Cougar tracksters facing Washington test

Judged in terms of best marks, Saturday's dual track and field meet between BYU and Washington should produce one of the better match-ups of the season. But both teams are aware of the same need — improving their times and distances.

The Cougars, for example, have less than a month remaining before they head to San Diego for the Western Athletic Conference Championships.

The Huskies from Seattle face the same kind of timetable and are just as anxious about steady improvement of marks.

After a little more than three weeks of outdoor work, the Cougars have registered some impressive marks. But not enough of them, in the eyes of Coach Clarence Robinson and his assistants.

Latest figures released from the WAC office in Denver list BYU performers first in four events. Jari Keihas has a substantial edge in the javelin (a 249.4

best), and Goran Svensson of BYU has the best throw so far in the discus (190-11).

But it's the running of Brazilian freshman Agberto Guimaraes that is the real headline. Guimaraes thus far has recorded the best clockings in the league in the 800 and 1500 meter runs.

Agberto reeled off a 1:46.76 in the 800-meters at Baton Rouge, then last week recorded a 3:43.4 1500 in the Sun Angel Classic at Tempe.

Both marks are approximately two-seconds ahead of anything clocked in the WAC thus far.

Hammer thrower Rolf Gustavsson is listed as second in the WAC with a spin-toss of 203-10. But that mark is nearly 20 feet under the best by UTEP's Thommie Sjolholm.

If there's one event dominated by one school, it's the 400-meter run, where San Diego State has the first four places in that event; clockings from 46.96 to 47.74 for that distance.

One of the WAC listings, according to Robinson, is the best in the nation at last reporting. Guimaraes' 1:46.76 is tops, which should make him a heavy favorite for Saturday's run in the BYU Stadium.

Assistant Coach Willard Hirschi has an explanation for what appears to be the club's varying level of performance.

"When we take our distance runners to Louisiana State for a meet involving eight schools, our distance men win or finish high," said Hirschi.

But unfortunately, as Hirschi pointed out, "When these same runners have to compete against Texas-El Paso, one judged the best in the country, they suffer by comparison." The Cougars are hoping nothing like that happens when they face the Huskies.

Longshot rookie leading Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Jeff Mitchell, a longshot rookie in a field of stars, birdied his last two holes for a 6-under par 66 that broke a foreign stranglehold on the first round of the 44th Masters golf tournament Thursday.

Mitchell, 25, the last man to finish his round in the gathering gloom of a Southern spring day, tied PGA David Graham and British Open titleholder Seve Ballesteros for the lead.

Graham, an Australian now living in the United States, and Ballesteros, the bright young Spaniard who has ruled European golf for several seasons, led a foreign domination of the annual spring classic that saw non-Americans holding three of the first five places.

The winds gusting through the chutes formed by towering pines that line the fairways dashed the hopes of most of the American stars.

Typical of their frustrations were the efforts of Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson.

Nicklaus, at age 40 attempting to regain the peak of supremacy he enjoyed so long, was eight strokes back at 74.

Handicapped kids display art

By PHIL BUSSEY
Universe Staff Writer

The "Special Art Show for Special Children" has been on display in the HFAC fifth floor for the past week without much attention. However, when the artists showed up to celebrate their efforts, it was as if they had never had any of their works put on display before.

"The truth is, they hadn't. The artists were mentally and emotionally handicapped children from the Harrington School in American Fork and the Orem Junior High School. For many of the students it was more exciting to see their masterpieces on the wall than to eat the refreshments.

Mrs. Sharon Gray, a part-time faculty instructor in the art department, was in charge of the show. She also teaches the art class that shows BYU special education students how to use art in teaching.

She said, "We go to the schools and work with the children individually. They are not institutionalized so this is not the only outside exposure they have had."

Mrs. Gray said this was the second time the art show has been held at BYU and it has proved successful both to the students participating in the show and those viewing it.

"Just as there was a special olympics held for handicapped children, we like to think of this as the 'art olympics.'"

According to Mrs. Gray, the art program was very exciting to the BYU students because it was probably the only time they have had the chance to teach art to mentally or emotionally handicapped children.

Stephen Hallus shows off his art work while Jonathan Stevens looks on. The "Special Art From Special Kids" has been on display on the fifth floor of the HFAC.

Holly Pett, a senior majoring in therapeutic recreation from Orem shared her feelings about the experience. "I really like it because it is a way for children to express themselves and create something they can call their own. It is exciting for them to make the trip to BYU and see their works displayed."

According to Miss Pett, the enjoyment of seeing their art on display is not the only benefit to the class. "The children progress as we work with them. The progress comes slowly, but they do grow and benefit from the experience," she said.

The children's art show will be shown at the end of each term. Some may think it is just art by some kids, but they are wrong. This is "Special Art From Special Kids."

Ambassadors to tour China following performance at Y

By MARA CALLISTER
Universe Staff Writer

Before leaving on a six-week tour of the South Pacific and Mainland China, BYU's Young Ambassadors will give one performance of their China show next Friday in the HFAC Pardo Theater.

The performance, which begins at 8 p.m. on graduation night, costs $2.50 and is called "To China With Love." On tour, the show will include Mandarin narration before every number, but for the BYU audience the performers will sing and dance the entire 90 minutes. The numbers include choreographed American songs such as Broadway and Disney tunes. Also included are comedy-song routines and international folk songs.

"Because of the language barrier we made the show very visual and colorful," said Wendee Jensen, assistant director of the Young Ambassadors.

"One of China's most popular American tunes is 'Yankee Doodle' so we made a whole medley for that song from a 1900 style up to a 1980 version."

The performers will leave Provo April 20 to entertain in 16 cities and tape television appearances in the Philippines, Taiwan, and possibly Hong Kong. While on the Mainland, the group will give concerts in Peking, Nanking, Shanghai, Hangchow and Canton.

Preparations for the tour began in February with the 30 members practicing "eight hours on some Saturdays," earning $1,000 each for their parts, getting seven immunization shots and processing their visas.

Along with the dance classes required of Young Ambassadors, the international group took a three credit hour culture class about China and Asia.

Governor to direct concert

Utah Valley Symphony's Pops Concert held April 16 at 8 p.m. in the Provo Tabernacle will triple feature Gov. Scott M. Matheson, clarinetist Ralph G. Laycock and 85 year-old bass vocalist J. Delos Jewkes.

Matheson will conduct Utah State affairs and the Utah Valley Symphony at the same time when he raises his baton Wednesday night to conduct his favorite composition, Sousa's "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

Conductor Ralph G. Laycock will briefly lay aside his baton in favor of the "licorice stick" to conduct and perform Artie Shaw's "Concerto for Clarinet and Orchestra."

J. Delos Jewkes, bass vocalist, will sing several selections, including "On the Road to Mandalay" and "If I Were a Rich Man" from "Fiddler on the Roof."

GOV. SCOTT M. MATHESON

Chad Campbell, dressed as Pinocchio, sings "I Got Strings" as part of a Walt Disney Medley performed by the Young Ambassadors from BYU.

'Fires of the Mind' to play in Orem

The Orem Public Library will present Robert Elliott's play "Fires of the Mind" this Saturday evening. The play, which was performed last week at BYU, studies the life of Mormon missionaries.

Set in contemporary Taiwan, the play explores the tensions and joys of missionaries attempting to be "anxiously engaged in a good cause," and of the conflict between individual integrity and conformity to group norms.

Elliott, who is currently studying drama and playwrighting at Yale University, wrote the play as an undergraduate majoring in English at BYU. It had its premier performance in the Margret Arena Theater, sponsored by the department of theater and cinematic arts.

It was published in its entirety in the first issue of "Sunstone" magazine, Winter of 1975.

The play will be presented as a reader's theater, the second in a series of productions thus staged at the Library. This production is directed by Dr. Thomas F. Rogers and acted by members of the BYU Honors Program.

"Fires of the Mind" is not expected to entertain children under the age of 12 and parents are advised to leave them at home.

The production will begin at 8 p.m. this Saturday at the Orem City Center, 58 North State, Orem. There will be no admission charge.

tion picture industry grows

Utah: future Hollywood?

By PHIL BUSSEY
Universe Staff Writer

Utah has been the center for motion pictures for more than 50 years. The business is now expanding and capturing its share of attention in the past few years the motion picture industry has expanded to more than $40-million a year business in Utah and continues to grow.

The rapid growth in Utah has attracted much attention, it is not new to the state. Utah has been the spot for several famous movies were made. The first film to be made in Utah was a silent movie depicting the history of the state, which was made in the 1920s. Utah was also the place for the filming of the Tom Mix westerns which were famous in the 1930s.

It was around this time that movie producers began to realize the potential of Utah for their movies. The late John Ford filmed several of his classics in the state, including "Stagecoach," starring the late John Wayne. Another famous producer to use the Utah countryside in his films was Cecil B. DeMille. DeMille's film, "The Union Pacific" was filmed in Utah and eventually became one of his best. To date, more than 250 films have been shot either completely or partially using Utah's scenery.

Utah has blossomed into one of the major areas for filming in the industry during the past few years. Especially the more recent efforts have brought attention to the state. The "Electric Horseman," starring Robert Redford and Jane Fonda, was filmed on location in St. George. The motion picture has been nationally distributed and is currently showing in Utah.

Redford has made other films in Utah such as "Jeremiah Johnson," filmed near Redford's resort in the Provo Canyon.

One producer who has used Utah in the majority of his works is Kieth Merrill. His film "Take Down," a "Rocky" type movie about a high school wrestler, was filmed in the old American Fork Junior High School. Merrill's recent effort currently showing throughout Utah, is based on a man who wages war on the IRS, called "Harry's War." Merrill's movie was filmed entirely on location in St. George.

While many of the films being made in Utah are on fairly small budgets, a new big budget feature film has already begun filming here. Directed by John Schlesinger (who has to his credit other films such as "Yanks," "Far from the Madding Crowd," and "Marathon Man") the film is called "Honky Tonk Freeway," and will star Beau Bridges and various other movie stars.

There are many reasons for the growth in Utah, and according to John Earle, Utah Film Development director of the Utah Economic and Industrial Development division, it has not been accidental.

"There are many reasons for the growth," he said. "But probably the greatest asset is the great diversity of scenery within a short distance of a central location." Earle said within a few hours drive, almost any kind of scenery can be found.

Combined with the scenery is the economical advantage of filming in Utah. "With major filming facilities here, close locations for filming and low costs, a movie can be shot at a cheaper price without sacrificing quality," Earle said. With the facilities available, and the talent both in filming and acting, many independent film makers, working with a smaller budget, can produce quality films without a great deal of money.

One benefit Utah has in the film industry is the ties many people seem to have with the state. "Many producers have an affinity for the state and don't care to break those ties," Earle explained.

He continued, "Some are located here, like Robert Redford and the Osmonds, that bring business into the state instead of going elsewhere to work."

Many people feel the growth of the film industry in Utah could prove detrimental to the state in many ways, but none will complain at the amount of new or "fresh" money injected into the economy by the industry. Earle said, "There was over $40 million spent on goods and services by the movie industry in Utah last year. It is actors and will air later this year. With the growth of the industry here in the state, national companies are also coming to Utah to film their advertising. Western airlines shot a national commercial at Snowbird ski resort using all local talent, while Maxwell House Coffee also filmed two commercials at Snowbird that were aired during the Winter Olympics in February.

Earle said, "As the facilities and technical support services grow we will see more and more commercial production taking place in the state."

According to Earle, the film industry will continue to grow in Utah even when the economy slows. "It has been the pattern that when a recession hits or the economy slows, film making increases, so Utah has a bright future."

Two television features are being filmed currently in Utah by Skaggs Telecommunications and Bonneville Productions. The Skaggs' television feature, "Celebration," and Bonneville's production "Mr. Krueger's Christmas," both feature well-known actors and will air later this year. With the growth of the industry here in the state, national companies are also coming to Utah to film their advertising. ## 'Friends of the COS' invite new members

The Civic Oratorio Society of Provo has invited interested people to join their club, "Friends of the COS."

The Civic Oratorio Society was formed by Professor Emeritus Jacob Bos in 1974, to provide opportunities for people to sing and listen to choral music. It is conducted by well-known professionals in the state and abroad, such as Dr. Brandt Curtis.

The COS board of directors encourages individuals to become involved as singers or audience members where "fine things happen in Utah Valley."

The COS will present a concert April 19 in the Provo Tabernacle. Tickets are available for a $2.50 donation and will serve as a membership fee.

Those interested should contact the COS at P.O. Box 588, Provo, Utah 84601.

Production staff positions to open

A producer from Northern California is looking for students interested in summer and permanent employment to assist in the early production stages of "Say Hello to Daddy," which premiered in Chicago last July and will soon go on East Coast and West Coast tours.

Says producer Randy Scull, "We need anyone who is interested in making money." Some of the spots which will need to be filled are in sales, marketing, training, bookkeeping, office management, as well as cast and crew members.

The play, written by Ken Eulo and Bob Fraser, will be produced in 36 cities, in conjunction with various non-profit organizations. Scull, who has done productions on- and off-Broadway, explained the set-up as "lucrative for all involved."

"Everyone will be in a winning situation," he said. "We will be doing something we can all be proud of, and at the same time will be able to benefit these charities by offering them part of the profits received from the plays."

Scull has produced Broadway plays such as "Bubbling Brown Sugar," "Stars At Home," and "Short Eyes," which in 1977 was chosen best film of the year by the New York Drama Critics. He says he is interested in producing quality family entertainment with wholesome themes. "Say Hello to Daddy" will be produced with this in mind.

Interested individuals should call Scull at 785-4425 or 374-8202 before April 16, or write him after that date at 4661 Victoria Park Ct., Fremont, Calif. 94538.

Diabetics normal

While it is important to alert those with diabetes or possible cases of diabetes to the dangers inherent in sloppy management of their condition, it is also important not to frighten them with negative and incorrect in-adult-onset diabetes is probably more prevalent, juvenile diabetes is not uncommon or "rare."

Perhaps fear and misconceptions about the diabetic's condition causes many individuals not to respond to the help offered by the Health Center. Negative articles such as Mr. Allan's contribute to the fear and myths of the diabetic condition. If articles such as this were approached in a positive manner perhaps more individuals would be inclined to approach the healthy management of their condition in a positive manner.

Richardson defended

Richardson defended

I think Brown's statement that Jed Richardson stresses a "back to basics" approach is a remarkably apt summary of Richardson's position. In mentioning specific "problems" with this idea, however, Brown seems unable to differentiate between basic and non-basic governmental functions. Would a "return to basics" eliminate governmental involvement in national defense, coining money, regulating interstate commerce, or taxing, to name a few "points" raised by Brown? Perhaps, with his time taken up by geography as well as political science, Mr. Brown has been unable to spend time in such frivolities as study of the U.S. Constitution, but every one of the powers above, mentioned by Mr.

that one can be coerced into feeling or practicing love, kindness, and generosity; but perhaps the governmental welfare and Social Security systems have been such overwhelming successes that any violation of rights is justified in prolonging

Open Door responds

Contrary to your accusations, Open Door candidates have not made "false statements about speaking engagements, concerts, and policies" and do not aspire to the ranks of the "elite" at BYU. Our list of speakers who have been rejected by the administration is an accurate list. The ASBYU academic vice president, Sharmar Smoot, admitted this openly at the well-attended "Speak Easy" on Feb. 28. Sharmar also told a group of us on
